

The Death of a Champion

It is with great sadness that we report the death of Deacon Cranston Harrison who served as a Minister in the Church of God in England for a number of years. Deacon Harrison passed away at his home in Hockley, Birmingham. He was father figure in the church and a mentor to many younger members. He was instrumental in the establishment of the former church in Northfield (Now Long Lane) being the husband of the then Pastor, Lurline Harrison.

Deacon Harrison will be greatly missed by the membership in England and remembered for his many attributes including his unflustered nature where nothing seemed to bother him. Many have attested to the fact that they never saw him get angry over the years.

Brother Harrison is survived by his wife, Evangelist Armena Harrison, his six children, six step children and many grandchildren.

Deacon Harrison, rest in peace.
